EVELYN KNIGHT

In radio and recording circles Evelyn Knight has come to be known as "The Lass With The Delicate Air", both because that time-honored song is one of her biggest hits and because it doubles deftly as definitive of her singing style—which is soft, light and sweet as a spring breeze.

The birth of Evelyn's style was partly accidental and partly on purpose. Or perhaps it would be more accurate to say it was invention born of necessity. She had, up until a few years ago, achieved only minor recognition as a singer of old English ballads. She sang them "straight", that is to say—without flourishes or embellishment. Then came her first major engagement, at New York's famous night club, The Blue Angel. Evelyn had intended to continue singing her ballads just as she had always sung them. But when she found that her accompaniment at The Blue Angel was to be supplied by the Herman Chittison Trio—a definitely "hot" jazz combo—she realized that something would have to change. Being an amenable gal, Evelyn promptly arrived at her own very conciliatory solution. "After all, this is a democracy", she reasoned. "There's one of me and three of them . . . obviously a majority."

Wham! She became an overnight sensation. Radio show invitations and a Decca contract followed in natural sequence and Evelyn was on her way to the top.

Born in Reedsville, Virginia, near Washington, D.C., where her father worked as a geodedic surveyor of the government, Evelyn made her singing debut on a Charleston, South Carolina, radio station.

Surprisingly, with her wealth of pulchritude and talent, Miss Knight's arrival in Hollywood to join one of the big radio shows was her first summons to the film capital. Natch! Twentieth Century-Fox has now signed her.

JERRY GRAY

Jerry Gray, roly-poly musical director of the Bob Crosby show, was—there's no denying it—a child prodigy. Yet this proved to be a boon rather than a handicap, as can be attested to by all the persons associated with him. He was an accomplished violinist at the tender age of seven and played the instrument with a symphony orchestra in his native Boston when he was twelve; all the other members of the orchestra averaged 50 years of age.

To be more specific about Gray's background. At the instigation of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Graziano, he took his first violin lessons at the Boston Opera House. However, it was not at their instigation that he spent his evenings in one of the bean city's "hot" musicians' rendezvous—sopping up jive.

The very day Jerry reached his majority he received, and accepted a bit to play first violin in Artie Shaw's string orchestra and, 'er long, he was top arranger for the musical aggregation. He arranged Shaw's recordings of "Beguin The Beguine", "Carioca", "What Is This Thing Called Love", "Softly As In A Morning Sunrise", to name but a few.

Some months later Gray accepted the post of arranger for Glenn Miller's band, meanwhile, composing such popular tunes as "Pennsylvania 6-5000", "I Dreamt I Dwelt In Harlem", "Sun Valley Jump", "String Of Pearls" and "Caribbean Clipper". Jerry also wrote the musical arrangements for two of Miller's movies, "Sun Valley Serenade" and "Orchestra Wives".

Though Jerry was the 'man-behind-the-sound" of some of the Glenn Miller's most famous works, he has now succeeded in creating his own "Jerry Gray" sound on the Decca Label. Music that will enhance his reputation as one of the most respected conductor-arrangers in the field.

TOMMY DORSEY

TOMMY DORSEY, signed to an exclusive three-year Decca contract in the summer of 1950 and currently touring the nation with his great dance band, likes to recall his first professional engagement—for a variety of sentimental reasons.

(A) He performed in knee pants.

(B) The pants belonged not to him, but to his brother, Jimmy, who had outgrown them.

(C) The engagement netted him the modest sum of 68c.

Some years later, Tommy set a record by playing 15 cities in 16 days—collecting $116,000. Even after taxes, this left Thomas with a good deal more than 68c.

Tommy's initial interest in the Do Re Mi's dates back to his early childhood in Mahonoy Plain, Pa. Along with his brother, Jimmy, he studied music under the tutorship of his dad, who was himself an accomplished musician and organizer of what used to be called brass bands. The Dorsey youngsters learned to play every instrument a brass band boasted. They became utility men for their dad.

Despite this early jack-of-all instruments grooming, Tommy forsook music and school simultaneously. He became a delivery boy in a meat market. Meantime, brother Jimmy was toiling in a coal mine. But neither of the two was pleased with the prospects. The Dorsey lads soon realized that music was their forte—and so they formed the orchestra known as the Dorsey Brothers Novelty Band. It played with fair success for neighborhood dances, but when the boys moved on to Baltimore they received a severe jolt—they were practically booed out of the town. A tolerant and music-wise father told them there was nothing wrong that practice and study couldn't fix.

Tommy and Jimmy intensified their musical study. Both were soon picked up by the "Scranton Sirens", as hep-happy a group of musicians as you'd find anywhere at the time.

The next ten years saw the Dorsey freres in the "major leagues", tooting their respective instruments for most of the top bands of the day—Goldkette, Whiteman, Roger Wolfe Kahn, the California Ramblers, Rudy Valee, Lennie Hayton, Red Nichols, Andre Kostelanetz, Eddie Elkins, etc.

The Dorsey Brothers formed a big-time band that included Bob Crosby on the vocal, Glen Miller, second trombone, and Ray McKinley, drums. The band lasted two years. Tommy then started from scratch and it wasn't long before he hit the top again with his own orchestra. First name spot for the T.D. band was New York's French Casino. Then followed a tremendously successful road tour—from Times Square to Texas and back. The Pennsylvania trombonist became an acknowledged master overnight.

The rest is history you all remember. Tommy Dorsey has remained on top for over a decade—in the movies, on recordings, in personal appearances, on the juke box circuit and on the air.

His band has been the incubator of other successes. Frank Sinatra, Dick Haymes, Jo Stafford, Connie Haines and the Pied Pipers were only a few to serve their apprenticeship with him.
